

SURVEYING PARTY ENTERS SAND CAVE; SHAFT LOCATION O.K.

Vision of Mr. Carmichael removed three feet of earth and rock between 8:30 and 1:30 o'clock, making the depth of the shaft twenty-five feet at the latter hour.

It was estimated that the diggers must penetrate forty-five more feet to tap Sand Cave at a point near where Collins lies. At the new rate approximately seventy-six hours would be required to reach Collins.

The diamond point prospecting drill was sent to a depth of fifty feet today without striking sand and limestone of thickness which might necessitate dynamiting.

Mr. Carmichael had feared that blasting would be necessary Friday night and had made preparation for "shooting," which would have been hazardous to an entrapped man.

Eight picked men from the engineering corps of the Tennessee National Guard, under the command of Capt. C. H. Hall, reported to Lieutenant Governor Denhardt here tonight and immediately started working in sinking the shaft to Floyd Collins' trap. The men's trip was authorized by Gov. Austin Peay of Tennessee.

One coincidence of the trapped man's plight came to light when Dr. Pinkhouse tonight wired Rabbi Joseph Tausch at Louisville that he had planned to do long before Collins was caught in the cave.

To care for the hundreds of stories that are being told here by newspapermen and for the hundreds of incoming messages to Collins, his family and persons who tried vainly to reach him, the Western Union Telegraph Company has installed an office at the cave, where two operators are stationed.

Union Services Planned.

Staff Correspondent of The Courier-Journal. Sand Cave, Cave City, Ky., Feb. 8.—Permission was given the Rev. James A. Hamilton, Louisville minister, to hold Sunday services today for the multitudes expected to cover the hillside about the cave where Floyd Collins is buried alive. Rev. H. H. Denhardt expressed his approval and the time for the prayers and petitions was set for 3:30 o'clock.

It is expected that other congregations throughout the State and Nation will join in the supplications of the watchers here.

Cave Route Explained.

Because of numerous inquiries that have been received by the Louisville Automobile Club and the Touring Bureau of The Courier-Journal and The Louisville Times concerning the distance and the condition of the road to Cave City, Charles Swartzendruber, director of the newspapers' bureau, gave the following information Saturday:

Cave City is on the Dixie Highway, eighty-nine miles from Louisville. The road is practically all paved to Horse Cave and is good, although there is some construction work at Camp Henry Knox. From Horse Cave to Cave City the road

Newspaper Men Unite In Praise of Miller's Work

By JOHN FRANCIS, Staff Correspondent of The Courier-Journal.

Sand Cave, Cave City, Ky., Feb. 7.—William Burke Miller has passed the test among his contemporaries. Every one of the host of newspaper men of the cave is unanimous that he has.

The Courier-Journal representative's efforts to rescue Floyd Collins, and the manner he "handled" the story have caused them all to pay homage to "Skeets."

What other newspaper men and women think and what they say about "Skeets" follows:

Sonia Lee, Chicago Evening American.—Great stuff. I'm strong for Miller. He showed remarkable ingenuity.

Carl Harris, International News Service.—"Good work and Skeets is to be congratulated as well as the others who helped try to get Collins out."

Dave Austin, Cincinnati Post.—"The first interview was a corker. The second and other trips might have resulted in a good story for the opposition newspapers."

Tom Killian, Chicago Tribune.—"The kid has guts."

William C. Eikenberg, New York Times.—"Finest thing done in a long time."

is poor, but passable. This is a distance of five miles. Sand Cave is six miles from Cave City on a dirt road.

MISS PONSELLE IS SIGNED FOR OPERA

New York, Feb. 7 (AP)—Carmen Ponselle's ambition to appear in Grand Opera with her sister, Rosa, is to be realized. It was disclosed today that she had been engaged by the Metropolitan Opera Company to sing next season.

The sisters used to sing in a church choir in Meriden Conn. together, and later in vaudeville. After Rosa had achieved a position with the Metropolitan Opera they did not again appear until when they sang at a Sunday night concert at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Carmela was credited with giving up her ambitions a few years ago to insure Rosa an operatic career.

Juneau, Alaska, Feb. 7 (AP)—Gov. Scott C. Bone commented today on a complaint filed in the White House at Washington, D. C. yesterday by John W. Frame of Ketchikan, Alaska, asking that Bone be removed from office.

"This is one of the vicious political attacks that have characterized the Alaska situation for many years," said the Governor.

He added that he did not take the attack seriously, but was ready to furnish any information asked by Secretary of the Interior Work, to whom the complaint was referred.

FRANCE TO PAY, DAESCHNER SAYS

Nation Desires Debt Settlement, Not Repudiation, He Asserts.

READY FOR ARMS PARLEY

Washington, Feb. 7 (AP)—Reiteration of France's desire to reach a debt settlement and of assertions that the country has no thought of repudiating her financial obligations was made by Emile Daeschner, newly appointed French Ambassador to the United States.

The Ambassador did not disclose whether he had indicated his intention to a concrete proposal of debt settlement to present to the United States. He said no definite plan had been made, however, as to the manner in which the matter would be taken up with this government, and that he was awaiting further instructions from France.

Meanwhile no engagements had been made either with the Treasury or the Debt Funding Commission to discuss the matter, he said.

The discussion in the French chamber over the budget, the Ambassador said, had delayed further steps in the refunding negotiations, but he expected instructions as soon as that matter was settled in the French Parliament.

Ready For Arms Parley.

Concerning reports of a forthcoming arms limitation conference, M. Daeschner said France, by ratifying the Geneva protocol, had made her position on disarmament perfectly clear. France, he said, was always ready to discuss disarmament.

Plight Of Collins Recalls Another

California Miner Was Rescued After Being Buried 11 Days, Story Says.

Bakersfield, Calif., Feb. 7 (AP)—The plight of Floyd Collins, trapped 100 feet below the surface of the earth in Sand Cave, near Cave City, Ky., recalls to Californians the somewhat similar experience of Louisy B. Hicks, Bakersfield miner, caught in a cavern of the Edison Electrical Company tunnel in Kern River Canyon, December 11, 1906.

Hicks, protected from tons of rock and debris by an overturned car, was rescued alive after having been entombed eleven days.

Buried with five others 100 feet underground, Hicks was the sole survivor.

Rescue on a steel pipe told frantic rescuers that at least one of the entombed men was alive.

A hollow steel pipe was driven through the hole and a sound was made and communication was established with the buried miner. Milk was passed through the pipe to Hicks, while courage was given feverishly day and night to reach him.

The whole country watched while rays of miners worked their way through mine shafts and sound was made and communication was established with the buried miner. Milk was passed through the pipe to Hicks, while courage was given feverishly day and night to reach him.

When the emergency tunnel was completed shortly before midnight, December 22, Hicks was taken out of his living tomb and taken to a hospital.

Mr. La Guardia said he was willing to support the prohibition measures of prohibition advocates "to see if the law is capable of enforcement."

60 BOSTON POLICE SEEK 'LONE WOLF'

Boston, Feb. 7 (AP)—Sixty policemen in plain clothes today patrolled the Back Bay residential district in search of "Lone Wolf," a mysterious burglar whose specialty is robbing women who live alone in apartments.

The burglar gave the police their only clue to his identity Thursday night when he told Miss Martha A. Briggs, a public stenographer, whose apartment had been robbed, that he was Frank Stevens of Worcester.

He spent hours in the apartment after he had struck the woman with a pistol butt and had been caught by a patrolman and before leaving wrote on the dust of a mirror, "I am the Lone Wolf."

Boys' Death Laid To Furnace Bed

Police Accept Theory Lad Was Sleeping In It As Fire Was Started.

A theory that Albert Lee Greaver, 12 years old, was sleeping in the furnace of the National Forge Company, 2920 Garland Avenue, when the fire was started Saturday morning that caused his death, has been accepted by the police.

As John Jones, 50, negro janitor, lighted the oil burners in the furnace, the boy leaped through the door, a mass of flames. The negro smothered the fire with an old coat and the boy died at 9:50 o'clock, three hours later, at the City Hospital.

The victim is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Greaver, 2919 West Kentucky Street. According to his mother, he has slept several times in an automobile in front of his home and he may have spent the night in the furnace. The furnace was used for melting iron.

'SKEETS' IS SHEER PLUCK, IS TRIBUTE

Admiring Fellow Reporter Tells About a Hero Who Weighs 110 At Cave.

"Skeets," and nobody knows how bushful he really is. In fact, I didn't know myself until I saw him wine and dine me."

But so far, if you haven't heard what all this personal vein is about, I want to apologize for not coupling up my subject with his latest misfortune, and I'll remedy that now.

Down in a God-forsaken, sassafras-covered sink-hole, Floyd Collins, a natural-born cave explorer, not caught by the foot. Newspaper men and some newspaper women, including the 150, were rushed from papers from all over the place. The Courier-Journal shouted at "Skeets" and he shouted at a ticket agent, and no one said that he was at the mouth of the cave.

Did Not Stop At Sleeve Rolling.

He took off his coat and rolled up his sleeves and went to the very destination and end of his assignment.

He said that's what they call it on the papers with the imprisoned man.

He not only "got a talk," but he fed many a hungry hip. Obedient the orders of others. Tried to get him out. Worked night and day. Risked his life. Risked pneumonia. Went on exhausted but determined, rescued with one hand and reporting the story with the other. He did that thing, and with every ounce of his little human frame gas and cave, until after three days I reached him, put him to bed and threw the key away.

That's all he did.

I should have, of course, mentioned that sooner. I've told that much, and I might as well tell the rest now.

Sitting on the side of his bed after he had rested and hundreds were trying to congratulate him, what do you think he said?

"I hope my mother won't be worried about me," he sighed, "I'm just getting bigger than his shirt. The publicity got under his hide. He shrunk from it. He hated it. All the men from the big papers like 'Skeets,' because he is a companionable and audacious, does not push himself on anyone."

He did a great piece of newspaper work. The key to the cave was the jealous kind, nary a one of them. They all shook his hand and said, "Go it, kid, you've got the guts."

DOCTORS WAR ON BRITISH OCULISTS

Allege Physicians Should Diagnose Organic Disease Betrayed By Eye.

Special to The Courier-Journal.

London, Feb. 7.—The British Medical Association, official governing body of the science of medicine and surgery, proposes to insist that all prescriptions for spectacles, glasses or other eye treatment must be issued by properly qualified medical men.

It will take the first definite steps in this direction at the next meeting of the Royal Commission on National Health Insurance, by ruling that all cases of defective sight in the schools and other organizations coming under the National Health Insurance Law be dealt with by doctors.

It is complained that, for the sake of cheapness, many people go to ordinary spectacle-makers and opticians who are not necessarily medical men.

Dr. Cox, secretary of the British Medical Association, declared in an interview, "Our point is that the properly qualified ophthalmologist or oculist deals with the eye, not only as an optical instrument, but as part of the human body. The optician regards it solely as an optical instrument. The eye is a delicate part of the human body, often betraying signs of disease which might easily be overlooked by unqualified men."

Dr. N. Bishop Harman, senior ophthalmic surgeon at the West London Hospital declared "Five per cent of the eye cases show serious organic disease. If they are dealt with by opticians, the real root of the trouble remains undiscovered. Certainly opticians are becoming fearful of these risks, and are sending the cases in which they have doubts, to the eye surgeon. But some do not, and there lies the danger."

RED CROSS SENDS AID TO SAND CAVE

Money Appropriated to Establish Canteen At Entrance of Trap.

MINE EXPERTS CALLED IN

The Courier-Journal Washington Bureau. Washington, Feb. 7.—Announcement was made today by the American Red Cross at its headquarters here that it has agreed to aid the "heroic efforts" being made to rescue Floyd Collins from Sand Cave by authorizing appropriations to establish a canteen at the cave's mouth.

The organization points out that workers of the Cave City Chapter already have been joined by members of the Louisville Chapter and that the canteen, serving hot coffee and food at all hours, is in operation.

At the request of Brig. Gen. H. H. Denhardt, the announcement states, the Louisville Chapter yesterday sent two Red Cross nurses and emergency equipment, including tents and cots to Cave City. The emergency station, it adds, was set up last night. Miss Marie K. Manale, executive secretary of the Louisville Chapter, and A. P. Young are in charge of the canteen and emergency station.

Would Relieve Family.

Red Cross headquarters received telegram today indicating that the actual shipment of the canteen will relieve the Collins family entirely of the task of feeding the rescue workers.

Three Government mine rescue experts of the Bureau of Mines, sent by Secretary Work of the Interior Department to Sand Cave, were ordered today to return to their posts at Vincennes, Ind.

A telegram received by Acting Director D. A. Lyon of the Bureau of Mines from C. A. Herbert, one of the trio, announced that the rescue work was progressing in such a way and there was little the Bureau of Mines representatives could do.

The message reads as follows: "There is little the Bureau can do here except in an advisory capacity. The Kentucky Rock Asphalt Company has supplied all necessary equipment and competent men from their quarry thirty miles distant, and the Louisville and Nashville Railroad is furnishing its section men for common labor."

The chief mine inspector and two deputies are here. Also a number of competent mining men. The work of sinking the sixty-foot shaft to the supposed location of Collins is progressing as well as could be expected considering the broken and dangerous condition of the ground.

The Bureau of Mines experts sent to Cave City are C. A. Herbert, Griffith Powell and Joe Davies. They are expected to return to their posts today.

COOLIDGE PRAISES SCOUTS IN LETTER

New York, Feb. 7 (AP)—President Coolidge in a letter to Colin H. Livingstone, president of the Boy Scouts of America, on the eve of the fifteenth anniversary week of the founding of the movement, expressed "the honor and confidence that it will continue to expand in number and in the strength of its appeal to the youth of the nation."

President Coolidge is honorary president of the Boy Scouts. He said "If there ever was justification for uncertainty as to the usefulness of this organization it long since has been removed in view of the great work of character development that has been accomplished. The Boy Scouts have contributed greatly to the best training for useful citizenship."

Celebration of the anniversary will begin at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow night with elaborate programmes in every city, town and village. At that time 100,000 Scouts enrolled in 1917 troops will stand at attention and renew their Scout oath. Efforts will be made during the week to increase the membership to 1,000,000.

IBANEZ REPLIES TO CRITICS ON STAND

His Patriotism of "Highly Paid Shirkers," Alfonso, General.

Paris, Feb. 7 (AP)—Vicente Ibanez, the Spanish author who recently has been attacking King Alfonso and the Spanish military directorate in pamphlets distributed by airplane over Spanish territory, has made public a lengthy reply to the various attacks on him by defenders of the monarchy and the directorate.

The writer declares he and his friends are the only truly patriotic Spaniards.

"It is because we love our country profoundly, and not as certain highly paid shirkers do," the reply declares, "that we intend to persist in our attacks against the monarchy which is degrading Spain more and more into a feudalism, against the directorate, against the business and against the despotism of a generation who are ignorant even of their profession."
