MAYFIELD HOST TO PRESS BODY

Programme Planned for Mid-summer Meeting of Editors.

TO FISH IN REELFOOT

Special to The Courier-Journal.

Mayfield, Ky., June 23.—Editors and newspaper men from all over Kentucky began to arrive here this afternoon, and at 7:15 o'clock tonight the main delegation from Central Kentucky arrived for the mid-summer meeting and convention of the Kentucky Press Association.

Mayfield newspaper men, civic organizations and business men have left no stone unturned in preparing for the welcome and entertainment of the newspaper men, who are visiting Mayfield for the first time in an official capacity.

A programme embracing addresses by leading men in the newspaper and other professions; entertainment, including a West Kentucky barbecue and a fishing trip to Reelfoot Lake as the guests of a Mayfield hunting and fishing club, and numerous other events have been planned.

The meeting opened at 8 o'clock tonight at the Elks Club with the Rev. Dr. David Ausmus, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, giving the invocation. Mayor W. T. Vaughan welcomed the newspaper men to Mayfield and West Kentucky and Herndon Evans, Pineville newspaper man, responded for the visitors.

The early afternoon was devoted to registration, assignment to quarters and a short business session. Tomorrow and Saturday the newspapermen will hear Terry P. Smith, president of a Mayfield bank whose "Small Town Voice" given before the State Bankers' Association's convention at Louisville two years ago made him known as a humorist; George Bingham, editor of the Mayfield Messenger and creator of "Dog Hill" paragrafs; George Colvin, who will speak on the relation of the press to education, and Tandy Ellis, with his "Tang of the South."

For the entertainment of the women guests, an informal reception, a golf tournament, swimming party, dance and tour of the city and environs have been arranged.

Business sessions will be held again tomorrow following tonight's brief session. Committees will be made permanent tomorrow in the business session. More than 100 editors and other newspaper men are attending the sessions.

PIKE MAN GUILTY IN FATAL SHOOTING

Special to The Courier-Journal.

Pikeville, Ky., June 23.—George Blankenship was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury here late today and given a five-year prison sentence. Last February Blankenship shot and killed Boyd Hurley, a neighbor, whom he claimed had alienated his wife's affections. The evidence showed unpleasant relations over Hurley had existed in the Blankenship family for some time, leading to separation at times. Hurley, too, was married and the two wives had joined in the quarrel at times. When Blankenship asked Hurley not to interfere in his family affairs, a quarrel resulted and ended in the fatal shooting, witnesses said. A small pocket knife, partly open, was the only weapon found on Hurley after he was shot; those who reached him first testified.

She said he disappeared down an alley when she screamed. He was about 30 years old, she said.

11 JURORS PICKED IN STEVENS TRIAL

All-Day Session Is Devoted to Selection of Panel for Robbery Hearing.

ANOTHER VENIRE DUE

The trial of Fred E. Stevens, Jr., secretary of the Dixie Jewelry Company, charged with complicity in the alleged $100,000 Herman Hamburger diamond robbery in March, 1926, was delayed for another day, after an all-day session Thursday in the Criminal Court devoted to the selection of a jury.

Eleven jurors had been accepted when Judge A. T. Burgevin ordered a recess until Friday morning. The jurors in the meantime were ordered placed under guard of two Deputy Sheriffs, who were admonished to report any attempt to communicate with the talesmen.

A new order of process in examining prospective jurors was observed when Judge Burgevin ordered each prospective juror to "take the witness stand" for the purpose of examination. Frequently Judge Burgevin joined in questioning the prospective jurymen. It required four and a half hours to examine twenty-nine men who were available after an effort of two days on the part of the Sheriff's office to summon prospective jurors drawn from the jury drum.

Those accepted on the panel to try Stevens were:

J. M. Wilkerson, 668 South Sixth Street; Gus R. Wehrle, 1906 Richmond Avenue; William Sallee, Gardner Avenue and Taylor Boulevard; George E. Fisher, 1929 South First Street; Harry P. Crutcher, 1927 Bonnycastle Avenue; Charles Schook, Jr., 1100 Rammers Avenue; John L. Dalzell, 1721 Deer Park Avenue. J. T. Blanford, 137 North Galt Avenue; Clarence J. Panter, 1614 South Twenty-fifth Street; George McClure, 317 West M Street, and W. A. French, 4558 South First Street.

Judge Burgevin after the statutory panel was exhausted ordered the Sheriff to summon forty additional prospective jurors to appear Friday morning.

Stevens is indicted with six others and charged with aiding and abetting in robbing Herman Hamburger, New York jewel salesman, of diamonds valued at $100,000. He is the second of the defendants to be tried. John Cardin, alleged accomplice, having been found guilty and sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary. A jury in a former trial of Stevens two months ago, failed to reach an agreement. New evidence by the Commonwealth is to be introduced, it was said.

"The quiet duck puts his foot on the unobservant worm," reflects Abou Ben Misrah, the Persian poet, thereby showing on the one hand the advantage of shrewd behavior in any gainful occupation, and on the other the inconvenience that may result from a lack of alert attention to one's own interests.

At present the field of general investment—to judge from recent reports—seems to be occupied by a certain number of exceedingly quiet and well-fed ducks and a very large number of unobservant worms. In other words, investors as a class are not so alive to their own interests and well-being as they ought to be.
